

Two beginner puzzles for Jason, because I straight up couldn't wait until your birthday to send them.

Hi Jason,

I know you are busy and all with your new work, but I was hoping you could maybe shift your schedule around and find time one day to hang.

Clare

Jason's Schedule:

Sunday	1500 grocery shopping
Monday	0725 wake up 1745 meet Zoe for dinner
Tuesday	0745 wake up for work
Wednesday	1500 meeting with Cynthia
Thursday	1045 meeting with Elska 1745 dinner with Neville
Friday	1645 leave work early
Saturday	1615 visit the zoo to see the fishes

Box of Stuff

My man Joe is an American history teacher. He recently sent me a box of stuff in the mail with a note that reads: "doubt is the Father of Invention, and Death will come to us all". These are the box contents:

- A volta battery
- E. Coli in a petri dish
- A bit of modern looking barbed wire
- Maria Dalle Donne's diploma
- A box of phosphorus friction matches
- a very small quantity of isolated uranium
- The Scarlet Letter
- A photo of Obaysch in England
- A rather desiccated granny smith apple